Boyce registered as a National Football League Players Association Registered Player Financial Advisor

Shelley Lee Boyce, a CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ practitioner, has been registered as a National Football League Players Association Registered Player Financial Advisor. The National Football League Players Association (NFLPA) has implemented a program to register all financial professionals before allowing them to provide advisory services to NFL players.

Shelley Lee Boyce, CFP,® AIF®

This rigorous program, the first of its kind in professional sports, was borne out of excessive fraudulent experiences and is designed to protect NFL players against fraud and unfair practices by financial advisors while ensuring players have access to the best financial advisors possible.

To be eligible, the financial advisor must be an individual Registered Investment Advisor, have at least three years of relevant experience and either an advanced degree or professional qualification, such as CFP® certification.

Shelley Lee Boyce under went in-depth background checks and due diligence. No financial advisor is eligible to participate if he or she has a criminal record, civil judgment or regulatory history relating to fraud, and similar offenses. Financial advisors registered in the NFLPA's Financial Advisor Program must agree to a set of rules and code of conduct governing their relations with NFL players.

Boyce, who has celebrated 18 years as a CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ practitioner, entered the financial planning field in 1987. She began her career working for a national wide insurance and investment firm. Boyce elected to leave that firm in 1989 and embark on a practice where she could expand the scope of her work and offer more comprehensive services to her clients.

Boyce's conservative approach and analytical planning skills make her a practical resource for detailed financial analysis and investment advice.

Boyce specializes in helping people eliminate money worries by designing a financial road map leading to increasing net worth and overall financial security. She has developed a strong practice working with couples, small business owners and women in transition.
