DURING THE DARKEST MOMENTS OF the economic crisis in late November 2008, Law & Politics sent a survey to more than 7,000 lawyers, asking them whom do they trust with their investments and whether, given the market meltdown, they still had enough trust to recommend their advisers to family and friends. The lawyers were also invited to submit comments about their advisers. From those comments and responses, we created a list of more than 200 trusted financial advisers—the people lawyers trust with their money.
